During my years of traveling, both domestically and internationally, the items I’m most attracted to are those that resonate with the human touch: an antiqued brass finish that’s darker at one end or mouth blown glass with hand etched stripes, some thicker than others. For me it is exactly these finish variables that create the beauty and art of the item. That’s why we seek out factories that are owned or operated by artisans who, like us, understand the balancing act between engineering, art and organic elements.

Our annual catalog is an opportunity to officially thank you for your ongoing support and to communicate my heartfelt appreciation for your business and loyalty. This year I also want to encourage you to engage with us on our social media channels, visit our blog, and watch our videos on the website. It’s good stuff!

Whether you are based in the U.S. or are one of our new international partners, please know that we are committed at all levels to bring you a memorable shopping experience whether you are working with our sales representatives, perusing one of our showrooms or ordering online.

Cheers,

The fact is, that when we describe an item as handmade or artisan-crafted, we can almost guarantee that no two of those items will be identical. For example, an art glaze finish on a ceramic bowl will vary depending on where it is placed in the kiln and the humidity on the day it is removed. The same principle applies to products made from organic materials like cowhide, agate, marble, and wood. The resulting finish and dimensional variances should be celebrated and recognized as artful differences giving you and/or your clients the opportunity to own a unique item. We appreciate that as designers and retailers you also see and understand the value of the human touch and the handmade.
Visit our website for real-time stock status to better help you plan your purchases. If it's in stock we ship in 72 hours. If it is out of stock we tell you the date it will be available. And if you can’t wait, consider one of the related items at the bottom of the screen. You can also choose to only view items that are in stock by filtering your product search based on availability.

Often referred to as jewelry for the home, chandeliers and pendants are being installed in non-traditional places like dressing rooms, bathrooms, closets, nurseries, and even over nightstands. And of course, placement in traditional locations such as dining rooms, hallways, and staircases will always create drama.

Many of our fixtures have been approved for use in damp environments, just look for the small “water drop” icon next to the item number.

So much more than simply providing a reflection, mirrors and their placement have become an art form. No longer do we expect to see just one, alone, in the middle of a wall—multiples are now hung with an emphasis on the pattern they create, full-length mirrors are horizontal, and mirrors are leaning instead of hanging, possibly overlapping on a sideboard or mantle. Mirrors are no longer predictable!
